++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Persistent rain in west, occasional in east with brighter periods.

Today:
Western areas cloudy with rain at times, some persistent rain across the Southern and Western Highlands and Galloway. East often dry with just the odd shower, some sunny intervals breaking through across the Borders and East Lothian, later the Hebrides.

Tonight:
Southern and eastern areas will be mainly cloudy with some rain or drizzle, heavy at first over Shetland. The west coast and northwest dry with clear spells, and turning colder.

Saturday:
The east coast and northeast cloudy with light rain. Elsewhere, bright with some sunny spells, perhaps some light rain reaching the Hebrides later.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Some heavy thundery showers in places on Sunday. Monday mainly dry with some sunshine. Tuesday dry for most of day then wet and windy in the evening.
